

FCC Commissioners
The Federal Communications Commission RE: Docket 04-435
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear FCC Commissioners ,

I am writing to voice my concerns about the FCC's proposal to relax the restrictions on the use of cell phones on airplanes in flight.

There is no hard evidence that cell phone use doesn't interfere with navigational instruments. The introduction of cell phone use in the cabin will not only increase tension among passengers, it will compromise flight attendants' ability to maintain order in an emergency. Cell phone use could also enable terrorists to coordinate a plan of action more effectively.

On an airplane, as a "next door passenger", I am not interested in hearing one's personal conversation since I would rather have peace and quiet when flying. Inside supermarkets, many cell phone conversations are nothing more than useless talk. Nothing really too important. I would prefer if you would provide internet capability to everyone with instant messaging that is affordable or free to the passengers. This gives those who have a need to talk, but in a quiet manner.

Please leave the current rules in effect.

Sincerely,

Jack Klukovich
